

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A game in which various participants are presented with a partial rendition of a picture or a scene. Each of the participants would have the opportunity to complete the scene and could be asked questions relating to the completed scene. A host or controller would review the scenes completed by the participants and various points would be given to the participants based upon their correct completion of a scene and the response to the various questions. Each of the participants could be required to utilize various challenges, such as completing the scene wearing 3D or distorted glasses or by employing a vibrating pen, pencil or marker.